The Younger Woman's Task Force,

a project of the National Council of Woman's Organizations, is a nationwide, diverse and inclusive grassroots movement dedicated to organizing younger women and their allies to take action on issues that matter most to them. By and for younger women, YWTF works both within and beyond the women's movement, engaging all who are invested in advancing the rights of younger women.

About Us

Founded in September 2006, the Boston chapter of the Younger Women's Task Force is the only local organization of and for women in their 20s and 30s dedicated to developing the next generation of women business and community leaders. YWTF builds leaders through events which feature younger women who have successfully overcome obstacles to their success at work and in life. We believe that bringing younger women with a diversity of experiences together to collaborate on the issues which matter most to them is the best way to build successful leaders and affect positive change.

Connecting Younger Women

What you know and who you know are equally crucial to success in life and at work. YWTF encourages women to connect with other women early in their careers. By mobilizing a broad collection of resources and strengthening our connection to other women we can better advance in life, pave new avenues for leadership and initiate change on many horizons.

Building Leaders

YWTF supports women as leaders in their communities by fostering the exchange of ideas between younger and more experienced women.

Affecting Change

By sharing our own lessons and learning from one another, aspiring younger women can band together to challenge obstacles in life, work, policy and beyond.

Women earn on average 78 cents to a man's dollar. Over a lifetime of work, the gap adds up.

*According to the AFL-CIO, the average 25-year-old working woman will lose more than $523,000
due to unequal pay during her working life.*

*Although women
make up
almost half
of America's labor force, only ten
Fortune 500 companies
have women
CEOs
or presidents.*
